WW1 1916 Imperial German Clamshell Deer Hunting Dagger / Sidearm With Stag Antler Handle , Ornate Brass Fittings Etched Blade To The 'Wartenburg Jager Battalion Nr 1' & Original Leather Scabbard. Sn 15084 - 15084

This is an excellent original WW1 dated Imperial German Clamshell Hunting Dagger / Sidearm. These substantial weapons were carried when hunting large game such as Deer or Boar for self defence and to deliver the 'death blow' to the hunted prey. This example has an undamaged Stag antler hilt with heavy ornate brass fittings including swept cross guard with hoof finials and cast oak leaf centre panel on one side, squirrel on the reverse panel, large clamshell cast with Deer in the field scene, ribbed ferrule and butt cap with ball top. Its 17 ½" single edged steel blade has fullers. The blade is undamaged with just light areas of staining consistent with age. It measures 23 ½" overall. The blade is etched along the fuller 'Jager Battalion Graf Yorch Don Wartenburg Nr 1' and dated '1916'. The weapon is complete with its correct black leather scabbard with rear seam, brass throat mount with acorn lock and long chape. The leather & stitching of the scabbard are clean and intact. The price includes UK delivery. Sn 15084
