The A7 was created to offer a lightweight, genuine Sako rifle at an attractive price. The A7 has unique features that are not available on any other Sako or Tikka rifles the special steel action is made in two sizes, S and M, to comply with available calibers; the receiver is drilled and tapped for bases; the bolt has three locking lugs in front and a 70-degree angle for fast cycling, and an internal black nitrated steel insert for extra durability; the polymer magazines developed for each type of cartridge have integral steel collars that allow loading without removing the magazine.

As a world class rifle manufacturer Sako is constantly looking for new solutions and innovations to advance the accuracy and usability of our products. Sako Roughtech stock is the result of combining traditional gunsmithing knowledge with the latest RandD methods.

The technology has been developed to deliver superb platform for precision accuracy and to withstand even the roughest handling in the most severe conditions. We have combined the Roughtech stock with Sako A7 action to create a true hunting and shooting tool that is well suited for different applications.

Sako Roughtech stocks all have a full integrated aluminum bedding that ensures precise and rigid chassis for the action

Sako Roughtech stocks are coated with rough surface texture to offer a solid grip in all weather conditions. Stocks are available in multiple different colors and introduce a special spider web surface for a distinctive look.

Sako Roughtech stocks are equipped with advanced high energy dissipation recoil pad. All the stocks come with two 5mm spacers for length of pull adjustment

Sako Roughtech comes in two different stock configurations. Roughtech Pro is designed for regular big game hunting, whereas the Roughtech Range is more oriented for prone position, long range and varmint shooting.
