Description

DEMAG, Imperial German Army, Aufpflanzbarer Grabendolch Or Fixable Trench Knife Bayonet & Scabbard With Integral Belt Loop. Sn 17950. - 17950

An original World War I Imperial German Army, Aufpflanzbarer Grabendolch or Fixable Trench Knife Bayonet, often referred to by collectors as the DEMAG. These knife Bayonets were popular private purchase weapons for German infantry men fighting in the trenches of the Western Front, as they provided a much handier and more useful multipurpose tool than that standard Mauser M-1898 bayonet. They were produced by Deutsche Maschinefabrik A-G of Duisburg, and the collector nickname originates from the circular DEMAG – DUISBURG makers mark on the ricasso. The combination knife bayonet has a unique “crank” shaped steel handle and steel crossguard, which is instantly identifiable with bayonet lug slot and button which works as it should. The undamaged lightly stained double edged blade with medial ridge is 6" long (10 ½" overall). It's square shank ricasso is crisply stamped with the Demag roundel and the reverse 'Gesetzlich Geschutzt'. The steel crank handle retains its original olive green paint. Its original black painted steel scabbard has a riveted integral leather belt loop (its retaining strap with press stud fastener is absent). The price includes UK delivery. Sn 17950
